

pumpkin	a round, yellow or orange, domesticated fruit of a plant, similar in growth pattern, foliage and flower to the squash or melon, often used for decoration on Halloween artichoke	a green edible plant related to the thistle, with arching, deeply lobed, silvery glaucous-green leaves asparagus	any of various perennial plants of the genus "Asparagus" having leaflike stems, scalelike leaves, and small flowers aubergine	an Asian plant, cultivated for its edible purple, green, or white ovoid fruit broccoli	a plant of the cabbage family, especially, the green tree-shaped flower and stalk that are eaten as a vegetable kohlrabi	a cultivar of the cabbage, having a turnip-shaped, light green, edible stem mushroom	any of the fleshy fruiting bodies of fungi typically produced above ground on soil or on their food sources (such as decaying wood) bell pepper	an edible spicy-sweet vegetable, indigenous to the New World, with fruits in different colours, including red, yellow and orange radish	the pungent, often red root of a vegetable, usually eaten raw in salads etc.
Brussels sprout	a small, green cabbage native to Belgium

Exercise

beet	common name of "Beta vulgaris", a plant with a swollen root which is eaten or used to make sugar
Chinese cabbage	an East Asian leaf vegetable related to the Western cabbage; also known as bok choy olive	an evergreen tree, cultivated since ancient times in the Mediterranean for its fruit and the oil obtained from it; the small oval fruit of this tree, eaten ripe (usually black) or unripe (usually green) chilli	the pungent fresh or dried fruit of any of several cultivated varieties of capsicum, often cut and used as a spice